How can parents and caregivers be supported in developing a positive co-parenting relationship?

Adoption Competent Mental Health · https://bridges4mentalhealth.org/hub/adoption-competence/how-can-parents-and-caregivers-be-supported-in-developing-a-positive-co-parenting-relationship/

In child welfare, establishing trust and fostering co-parenting relationships between birth parents, caregivers, and caseworkers is crucial to minimizing trauma and supporting family reunification. Both families need transparent communication and collaborative support networks. This resource outlines the Strengthening Families framework and early engagement initiatives, which can be essential for building rapport and ensuring that all parties work together effectively for the well-being of the child. When parents and caregivers work together, children have the support they need to heal.

Source: Casey Family Programs

Read More