Children and youth in the child welfare system often carry the weight of traumatic experiences, putting them at greater risk for developmental, emotional, and behavioral challenges. These struggles not only affect their personal well-being but also the stability of their families. For professionals working in child welfare and mental health, it is crucial to have the skills, knowledge, and understanding to provide adoption competent care. This webinar will equip you with the tools to better support children and families who have faced abuse, neglect, trauma, and loss. Learn how to integrate adoption competent principles into your practice and make a meaningful impact in their lives.
