Research shows that family engagement leads to better outcomes for children, youth, and families, but implementing effective strategies can be challenging. This webinar will dive into 30+ years of evidence supporting family engagement and provide practical insights into how families can play a vital role in improving child welfare and mental health systems. Led by family engagement expert, Pat Hunt, this session will equip you with tools to engage families not only as partners in care, but also in agency decisions and policy recommendations. This webinar will also address workforce challenges.
