Experts by Experience: How Engaging People with Lived Experience Can Improve Social Services

Engagement of Lived Experience · https://bridges4mentalhealth.org/hub/youth-family-engagement/experts-by-experience-how-engaging-people-with-lived-experience-can-improve-social-services/

This resource examines the perspectives of those with lived experience in the foster care system as a means of developing more effective social service programs. This resource places emphasis on receiving buy-in from those who have come through the foster care system and gives them the platform to communicate what aspects of a social service program is important. This information can be applied to those currently working for or building a social service program related to foster care.
